Week 12 – Intro and Preview

Hello everyone and welcome back!

We are so happy that we can finally continue after this long break. We hope you feel the same way. Starting today, you can expect a weekly update again.

When we started again, we thought about our current situation and of course want to share the results with you. Among other things, we re-evaluated our current software and decided to continue working with SpringBoot and Angular. We also checked whether our targets are still realistic and meet our expectations. We felt that the interface to other CookieBook users is desirable, but it does not have to be implemented in the first version. Our OUCD has been revised accordingly.

We have also added new displays on our YouTrack dashboard, showing the time per user and time per use case per workflow. You will find out next week what exactly we intend to do with it.

So stay tuned and see you next time
